To travel is to discover that everyone is wrong about other countries.

Angkor Wat, Cambodia

13.4125° N, 103.8670° E

This 12th century temple complex is incredible. Travel enthusiast Anthony Bourdain credits a visit to Angkor Wat with his decision to stop taking photos while traveling. He reasoned that no photograph could be taken which would truly capture the grandeur or the beauty of the city. He was right. The temple complex itself is enormous, much larger than others you might see in Asia and Latin America. You could spend days wandering through the complex and still not see every building. Reaching the site is easy and generally done via private tuk tuk from Siem Reap.
